Reasons of retraction (this part will be displayed in the Statement of Retraction on the publication website)	Our reassessment identified critical flaws in the experimental methodology pertaining to data collection and analysis within the conclusion section of the study. Follow-up experiments demonstrated significant limitations of the original research methodology and lack of sufficient evidence to support the conclusions. Given the absence of empirically verifiable evidence supporting the original conclusions, we formally recommend retraction of this publication to uphold scientific integrity and prevent dissemination of potentially misleading information.
